Paul Kelly,
RDS Chief Executive

I am delighted to extend a warm RDS welcome to all students, teachers, stakeholders and visitors attending this year's ESB Science Blast Limerick showcase. This event is a highlight of our calendar; not only due to the curiosity, creativity and enthusiasm shown by the children taking part, but also because of the teachers who inspire, guide and encourage them every day.

Delivered by the RDS through our Foundation Programme, ESB Science Blast is committed to helping the next generation to reach their full potential by encouraging them to think critically, work collaboratively, embrace creativity, and develop the confidence to communicate their ideas with clarity and conviction.

At the RDS, our mission is to inspire, enable and create positive change. This week, more than 3,600 primary school children from across Ireland will bring that mission to life by sharing investigations into topics that resonate and matter to them, such as the rise in AI to climate change. This showcases a critical mind and highlights a finger on the pulse of the major topics of our time.

I would like to express our sincere gratitude to the dedicated teachers, funders and supporters who make this programme possible. In particular, I wish to thank our title partner, ESB, whose long-standing commitment to STEM education and shared vision for a better future are central to the success of this initiative.

Finally, to all children taking part, I hope you enjoy your day at the University of Limerick Sports Centre and that this experience fills you with pride and inspires you to keep asking questions.

Paddy Hayes,
ESB Chief Executive

Bhur gcéad fáilte,

On behalf of ESB, it is my pleasure to welcome teachers and pupils from schools across Ireland to ESB Science Blast 2026 at the University of Limerick.

Over the coming days, University of Limerick will be brimming with curiosity and creativity as over 3,600 primary school children investigate all kinds of questions through science, technology, engineering and maths. The energy and innovation on display at ESB Science Blast is a powerful reminder of the potential that exists in every classroom around the country.

At ESB, we are committed to delivering a clean, secure electricity system for the customers and communities we serve – not only to benefit our lives in the here and now, but to shape a brighter future for generations to come.

Programmes like ESB Science Blast bring that purpose to life, by inspiring young people to question the world around them. As we work towards achieving net zero by 2040, we know that STEM will play a vital role in delivering clean and resilient energy for everyone.

Thank you to our partners at the RDS for creating and delivering this programme. Your dedication throughout the year ensures that ESB Science Blast continues to inspire and empower.

Thank you also to the teachers and schools who are taking part this year. Your commitment is helping unlock the potential of the future workforce we all depend on.

ESB Science Blast at University of Limerick is an inspiring programme, packed with potential, and ESB is very proud to be associated with it.

Go raibh maith agaibh

Why not get the rest of your school involved next year?

Show this booklet to your teacher colleagues to introduce them to the ESB Science Blast Investigation Framework to help them get started.

'Science Blast was so well organised from beginning to end. The shows were brilliant. The school projects were all very interesting & it was lovely to see the children so interested in science. The judge really took her time with the children & her feedback was so positive. The staff were all so well informed and it was all very safe.'

'The children were really looking forward to the day for months, as the class that went last year said it would be the highlight of their year. It lived up to all expectations and both children and adults are very grateful.'

'Thanks for another wonderful Science Blast - always the highlight of the school year and one of the best run! The children had a brilliant day and really enjoyed it all. We'll be back!'

1 What is your class question?

What is your class going to investigate? This should include phrases like 'How many?' or 'What happens if?' or 'Why does?'

6 How can you piece all your information together to answer your class question?

This could include:

- Did what you expect to happen, happen?
- Did anything unexpected happen and can you explain why?
- If repeating your investigating, would you do anything differently?
- Can you relate your findings to a real life situation?
- Can you think of any other questions you could investigate?

2 What is your class prediction?

This should include a prediction or estimation based on what the students know or their previous experience. What do they think might happen? Or what do they think they will find?

3 How will your class gather evidence to answer the question?

This should include:

- Observing
- Counting, timing or measuring
- Changing something to see what happens
- Building, coding, designing or making something to use (e.g. a tool, model or ICT solution)
- Recording

4 How will your class organise information?

This could include:

- Drawing a chart of plotting a graph
- Identifying patterns
- Classifying things or putting them in order

5 What do your findings mean?

This could include:

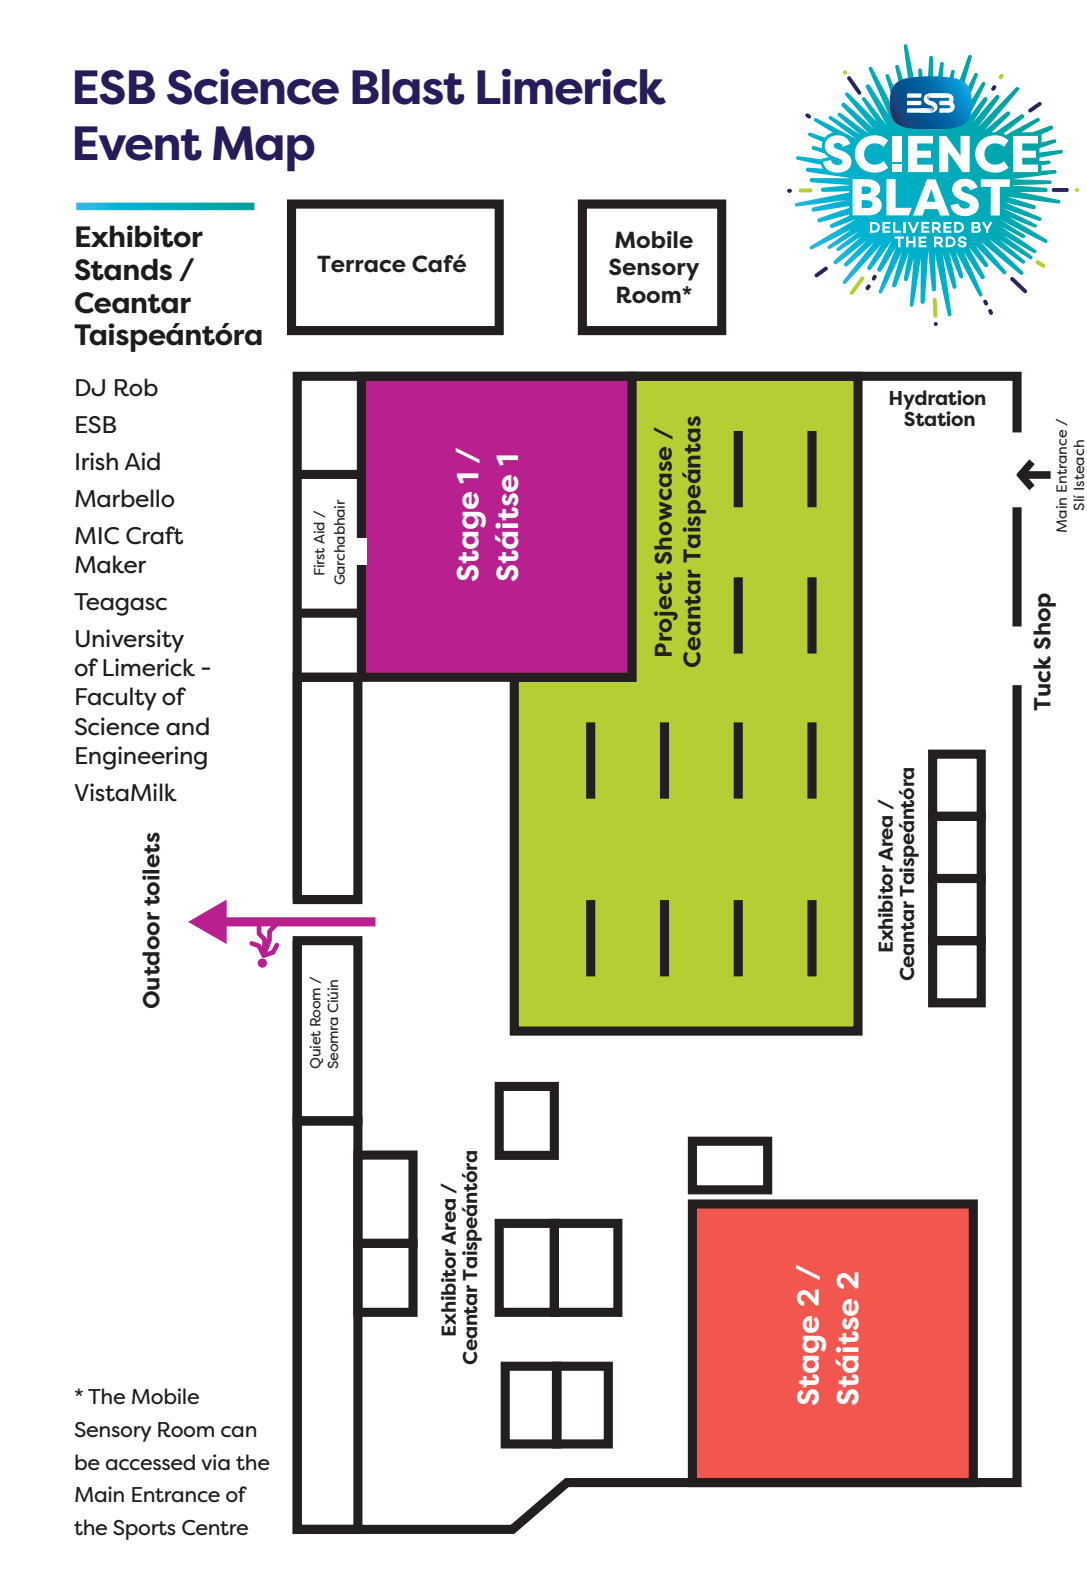

- What can you tell from the graphs or charts or other information?
- What might cause any of the patterns that you found?

ESB Science Blast Limerick Judges

ESB Science Blast is a non-competitive initiative which aims to support the development of core science and maths skills in primary school children. The role of Judges is to provide constructive feedback to students and their teachers on their work, to provide them with insight for how they could extend their investigation (for example by plotting data or changing a variable to see what happens) and to encourage children to think scientifically about the world around them. A big thank you to all of our Judges who voluntarily give of their time to support the next generation of inquiring minds!

ESB SCIENCE BLAST
DELIVERED BY THE RDS

The Royal Dublin Society (RDS), established in 1731, is a philanthropic organisation driving Ireland's economic and cultural progress. As a foundation and social impact organisation, the RDS invests in initiatives that address contemporary challenges, support innovation, and promote sustainable growth, ensuring a lasting positive impact on Irish society.

ESB Science Blast has been designed by the RDS to equip generations of primary school children with a skill base relevant for the 21st century. It is a non-competitive STEM education initiative delivered under the RDS's Science and Technology programme.
